We have an enrollment of about two hundred forty pupils at the present time in our school.

Christmas Operetta

"At the Court of Santa Claus", our Christmas Operetta was presented by a large cast on Dec. 17, 1931. It was given at the High School Auditorium. It was a very successful presentation, and was presented before a large audience.

George Jorgensen took the part of Santa Claus, while Margaret Brown took the part of Mrs. Santa Claus. Other characters were: Court Jester----Milton Durham, Poor Man ----Paul Power, Poor Woman---Lorraine Houck, The Spirit of Christmas---Bernice Weber, and Little Rich Girl---- Jeanne Slater. All took their parts exceedingly well.

Story of the Play

A poor family, consisting of father, mother, a boy, a girl and a baby appear; the father grieving, that on account of his illness, he will not have any money to buy some Christmas presents for his children. The boy gives his father the few extra pennies he has earned selling papers to buy fuel. The children talk of the beautiful things seen in the big stores, and of the little rich girl who had smiled so sweetly at them.

Scene II

At the Court of Santa Claus, where he and Mrs. Santa are waiting to see the gifts which the "Spirit of Christmas" and her helpers have made during the year, the "Court Jester" announces the arrival of the poor family who wish to bring the children in to see the big "Christmas Tree" and the toys. The poor family are given seats to watch, while the Jester announces the different "gifts" as they come in and perform for Santa's approval before being sent out to the children on Christmas eve.

Later, the little rich girl, who had worried over the poor boy and girl she had seen in the store--and knowing their address, brings her bank of Christmas savings to Santa, realizing he would know where all the good girls and boys lived, and asking him to see that he remembers these particular children. There is great surprise and rejoicing, when the poor children and the rich girl recognize each other, for now they are assured of a Merry Christmas.

Santa is especially happy, for he loves to see unselfishness in all his boys and girls--He says its his business to make folks happy.

Kite Contest

On a windy day in March a kite contest was held under the sponorship of the Eighth Grade of 1932 of the Irvington Grammar School.

In this contest twenty-four kites were entered a few of which did not fly. Lawrence Houck entered the largest kite. It was so large that it crashed on its first flight and Lawrence was out of the contest.

The judges were the three class officers, Walter Rose, Bernice Weber, and Margaret Brown. Milton Durham was official announcer for the day.

The lucky prize winners were as follows:

Mokoto Kihara won a belt and comb for the highest and prettiest kite.

Edward Amaral won an eversharp lead pencil for the kite going the fartherest.

Serafine Bettencourt won a pocket knife for the best all round kite.

June Operetta

Above is a picture of the main characters of our June operetta, "The Radio Maid." This operetta is under the direction of Mrs. Foster, Miss Stivers and Mrs. Joseph. We believe this operetta will be a big success. All of the cast are very capable of taking their parts.

The characters are:

Mr. John Holebrook	George Jorgensen
Mrs. John Holebrook	Lorraine Houck
Robert Holebrook, their son	Walter Rose
John Johnson,"Hired man."	Joseph George
Mabel Smith,"Hired girl."	Katherine Rathbone
June Worthington	Bernice Weber

Jeanne Slater takes the part of a popular college girl.

Chorus of"The Radio Maid."

The Story

The action of The Radio Maid takes place at the homestead farm of Mr. and Mrs. Holebrook, where every summer a group of college boys and girls go out for an outing and vacation.

Cupid works fast on Robert, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Holebrook, and June, who is a favorite among the girls and a singer on the radio. Also Mabel the "hired girl," and Joe, the "hired man"(who is always trying to propose), fall under the spell in their own way.

As time goes on at a "huskin-bee," a red ear of corn plays its part in the entertainment of Robert and June and their friends; and all ends well, even with the "hired man" Joe, who, just before the last curtain, announces his success in finally proposing to and winning Mabel.

Poem

A valiant band went forth to fight,
But not to conquer with their might.
To conquer learning was their aim,
All other victories seemed quite tame.

In sports, in studies, in work or play,
We did our best so now we'll say,
That we've passed these last eight years,
We'll leave with both grief and tears.

Sailing down the st[illegible]n,
We're approachi[illegible]ow a turn,
What is just around the corner,
Freshmen, we, next year shalllearn.

Written by Paul Power

Teacher: "Can anyone in the class tell me why an Indian wears feathers in his hair?"
Bright Pupil: "Yes'm. To keep his wigwam."

Suspicious Old Lady (on the farm) : "What's that stuff on those sheep?"
Farmer: "Wool."
Suspicious Old Lady: "I'll bet it's half cotton."

"There's a young woman who makes little things count."
"What does she do?"
"Teachers arithmetic in a primary school."

Clerk--Beg pardon, sir, but what is your name?
Guest (indignantly)--Name? Don't you see my signature on the register?
Clerk--Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought you had dropped the pen there.

Mr. Scales: "What do you find the most difficult thing on the piano?"
Mrs. Foster: "To pay the installments."

Bernice Weber: "What steps would you take if you saw a shost suddenly rise in your path?"
Lorraine Houck: "The longest I possibly could."

Mrs. Durham: "Milton, how is it I find you with your hand in the cookie-jar?"
Milton: "I don't know, Mother, unless it is because you wear rubber heels."

Skeptical Customer: "Can this fur coat be worn out in the rain without hurting it?"
Salesman: "Now, lady, did you ever see a beaver carry an umbrella?"
